Incisive Insights Newsletter – March Issue

Now more than ever Risk executives are challenged to identify, manage and reduce risk in their critical business processes, many of which are embedded in complex and highly specialized spreadsheets. Without adequate spreadsheet controls, many companies continue to be vulnerable to risks because their spreadsheets can't capture or report the risks they are facing.

What if your organization had essential visibility and control to manage the risks associated with business-critical spreadsheets, and made decisions based on data you can trust?

Read our CRO Guide: The Path to Risk Resilience to learn how to get started.

Many firms deal with countless currencies in today's global economy, but improperly categorizing them in spreadsheets (mistaking Canadian or Singapore dollars for American ones, for example) is a human error that can easily happen. Unfortunately, it can also be very costly and pose real implications for a company's employees and customers, as well as its shareholders. Enterprises must be able to mitigate this spreadsheet risk in order to protect their revenue and reputation.

Kaiser Aluminum: Increased confidence in spreadsheet data accelerates the pace of business.

The Company
Kaiser Aluminum is a leading producer of aluminum mill products for major automotive manufacturers. The company's success is dependent on accurate and consistent data across its global operations, including its manufacturing and mining operations and its distribution network.

The Challenge
Kaiser Aluminum's internal audit group was concerned about the accuracy and consistency of its spreadsheet data. The audit group was finding errors in the data, which was causing delays in the audit process and increasing the risk of financial misstatements.

Incisive Benefits

- Increased confidence in spreadsheet data
- Accelerated response times to business and operational data
- Increased efficiency with a higher level of accuracy
- Provided a more detailed level of analysis to inform decision-making

How Incisive Helps
The audit team used Incisive Software's spreadsheet management solution to ensure that all data was accurate and consistent. This allowed the audit team to identify and correct errors more quickly, reducing the risk of financial misstatements and increasing the accuracy of the company's financial reporting.
